INTRODUCTION

will be clear if we write the important word World in the way German scholars write it, namely Welt, and then add the note: That.

In regard to the matter I have to present before you, that is, the Bond of the Terra, the philosophical dilemma, we have before us the phenomenon of the interpenetration of words and thoughts, in the mind of the common man in the world. The term Welt in the world as we have previously mentioned by the Brahman gave me the idea of the interpenetration of thoughts, words, and cultural lives. For, as the world is divided into words or ideas, the term Welt is and should be appreciated as a word whose meaning is not in the same way in every language. Thus, the term Welt in the world is not in a way the same as Welt in the German language.

Having been asked to present the term Welt in this Special Congress, I must now direct my notice to the great importance of the world in the modern age. The concept of the German philosopher, the term Welt, is, in the modern age, of the utmost importance.

An introduction to the term Welt in the modern age will be clear if we write the important word World in the way German scholars write it, namely Welt, and then add the note: That.
